Ice Cooper on the Tariff Question.

Mr. Peter Cooper has addressed a letter to Horace J. Rodfield, Esq., on the tariff question, in which he says that during most of thirty years in which he has been engaged in the manufacture of iron he has been able to realize a profit of only 4 per cent per annum on the capital vested, while during the same period nearly, if not quite all, his brother manufacturers who were engaged largely in the same industry were compelled by the pressure of adverse circumstances caused by the fluctuating policy of the general government, and to go into bankruptcy.

The good book tells us of a man who built his house upon a rock, and how the rain beat upon it and the floods came and it stood, because it was founded upon a rock. It tells of another who built his house upon the sand, and how the winds blew and the floods came and it fell, and great was the fall thereof. After such a fashion Mr. Cooper is still advocating the policy of building houses on the sand in preference to the rock. If the winds and the floods "raise Cain," he says, "the house would have stood as well as the other man's." But they will come, Mr. Cooper! The fluctuating policy of the general government, which you have so long championed, has been the cause of all this bankruptcy; and in the midst of republican institutions for so long an American citizen to have the audacity to stand up and tell the people that they are not to think for themselves, but that the government will tell them what to think, and will never have an intelligent, independent, unchangeable tariff, is a piece of arrogant assumption so monstrous that it must result in diluting and depreciating what we now have.

We don't deny that the West either asks or desires an increase of the currency. There are some persons, here as elsewhere, who would like to discharge their indebtedness to the existing mass of currency, when everybody knows

DENIAL.

London, Feb. 15—Evening.

It now appears that the reports which were printed in the morning journals that Earl Derby and Judge Shee were dead are without any foundation, though both have been dangerously ill. It is announced to-night that they are much better, and their recovery is confidently looked for.

FLORENCE, Feb. 15.

The cloture to Admiral Farragut's funeral yesterday was a grand effair. Sella, the former Minister of Finance, lauded the Admiral, and in his remarks said that Italy boasts, and not irrationally, that he is hers.

Admiral Di-ardi-no offered the compliment, spoke of his love for Italy, and the confidence in her noble progress.

Hon. F. Marsh, representative of the United States in Italy, on behalf of the country thanked Italy for the honors paid to the dead.

Judge Longfellow, formerly Attorney General, former Secretary of Marine Affairs, and again an officer in the Navy, also a member of the Committee, captured by Vespucci, and confirmed by Sella, was greatly moved.

Telegram received at Washington, dated at New Orleans from the headquarters of the Fifth Military District:

NEW ORLEANS, Feb 7, 1868.

General U. S. GRANT:

I have removed some members of the City Council, who would not obey the order of the Legislature relative to the Mayor. Commanding in person, I have been unable to effect the object. Second District, and whether an election officer, under the laws, by the Council, or by the Governor. The attempt to fix the election was made while I was absent from the city. As soon as it was returned to General Sheridan's order, for the removal of the Commanding officer, I ordered the Council to meet, and the election was carried. The election was carried on in the presence of the Council, and the Council then dismissed, and before the quorum, was not present. I then ordered the Council to meet at special order of Oct. 31, 1867, removing the Council, and appointing others in their place.

My action in this matter was in accordance with the laws governing the Fifth Military District, which vests in District Commander to suspend from office any officer whose continuance in office is inimical to the interests of the people, or hinders, delays or prevents by force, or threats, the performance of the duties required by the reconstruction acts.

W. S. HANCOCK, Major General U. S. A.

Major General W. S. HANCOCK:

Your action in removing the City Council and Mayor of New Orleans under a full report of the facts in your case, is approved.

Georgia Reconstruction Convention Conservative Attempts to Reconsider a Section ch the Tax Ordinance—Another The Tax ordinance Legalized by General Meade The Late Election in Alabama.

By Telegram to The Chicago Tribune.

ATLANTA, Feb. 15.—In the convention this morning Mr. Mitchell, of the Macon delegation, moved a reconsideration of the vote by which the section of the tax ordinance was adopted, which reads as follows: "That the property of the State shall be taxed in proportion to its value, to be ascertained as directed by the Legislature, and all property shall be taxed except such as may be exempted by the Constitution of the United States." The motion was adopted with slight opposition.

Information from General Meade's office in the tax ordinance of the convention was received this morning. It is to the effect that the ordinance is perfectly satisfactory to the commander, and received his approval. The ordinance will be reported that a new election will be ordered in the counties that have not elected.

In the Senate to-day the Governor's message was read. It is principally devoted to the tax ordinance. It proposes that no person shall be disfranchised for the remainder of the year, except for violation of the election laws; that no person shall be disfranchised without indictment and trial by jury; that the Governor shall appoint registrars and managers of elections, and that the Legislature shall have no power to change the time of holding elections. The message was referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

In the House to-day the Governor's message was referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

The Georgia Legislature has ratified the fifteenth amendment.

Alabama Reconstruction Convention—Important Decision by Judge Underwood—Registration Order Issued by General Schofield.

MONTGOMERY, Feb. 15.

The Convention met this morning at 10 o'clock. The question was laid on the table by the previous question, and the Harries Resolution to memorialize Congress to remove the political disabilities of Alabama was adopted.

Judge Underwood has rendered Chancellor decision in the case of Judge Busteed, which was brought before him on petition of John Forsyth, editor of the Mobile Register, and others, praying for a writ of habeas corpus, and that the petitioners be discharged from the custody of the military. He decided that the petitioners were not entitled to the writ, and remanded them to the custody of the military. He also held that the Constitutional Convention was legally constituted, and that the Legislature elected by the people, to be elected on the first Monday in November next, could not be legally convened except by the Governor appointed by the Convention.

General Schofield issued several orders to-day relative to the registration. The new registration in Richmond, on March 16 to 21, and in other counties where votes have been changed, and registration since the last registration. Those who attended were disappointed at the postponement, as they had come prepared to purchase tickets, and many of them were willing to pay a premium for the "small parlors" or "biggest in the house."
